

Online Education, Personal Attention, No Crowded Classrooms

From the Chancellor, Dr. Paul Collins

There is a better, less expensive way to become better educated with less interference in your daily routine. The method is Online Studies and Acts Ministry University (AMU) has the expertise to serve students with the highest quality instruction. Our faculty is firmly established spiritually, academically, and experientially.

My background includes studies in pre-med, philosophy, history, and psychology. My degrees are from colleges, universities, and seminaries. I graduated from two institutions of higher education offering undergraduate, graduate, and postgraduate studies that are among some of the most recognized schools owned by a major denomination. I also attended colleges operated by other denominations, did some studying at two that were secular (tax payer supported) schools (one a college and the other a university), and pursued academics at two private, Christian educational institutions that offered undergraduate, graduate, and postgraduate degrees. None of my educational experience was online. It was all in a classroom setting. It was all expensive.

Now you can understand my willingness for AMU to offer online educational opportunities. We live in a technological, cyber world. It can work in our favor, or it can be an enemy if we are not equipped to function with its assistance. As Christians in the 21st Century environment, we have the opportunity to receive the highest quality training at a low cost. We can actually have a global ministry from our home. A willingness to utilize the Internet for our Christian education can be a worthy prelude to using it for a worldwide ministry.

I invite you to inquire about becoming a student in Acts Ministry University.
